

FR. AGNEL SCHOOL, NEW DELHI

1st October, 2020

Dear Parents and my dear Students,

School education is the joint engagement between Parents and School, much more during this trying time when all of us are in the same boat. The Half Yearly exams begin next week and we must not consider it as a pressure exercise. The examinations do not state that your child is good or bad, it is rather an opportunity for the student to test himself/herself, what he/she knows and has the duty to know. So chill, do not be overly stressed but take it seriously, as a personal challenge.

In School, the teachers ensure that students do not use unfair means, or copy or cheat in any form. They are in an environment of mutual trust between students and teachers. At home since the teachers are not present that must be done by the Parents since you are there to ensure that. No parent wants his/her child to be dishonest, because if he/she does it now, the future will be full of peril.

If parents can assure that they are watching that no cheating happens, that is the ideal situation. If parents feel they cannot stay at home and can provide two devices, one to allow the teachers to monitor and the other for the child to take the question paper, that too is a good solution. But the School will not compel any one to buy a new second device, but we consider that you will help us ensure the exams are carried out fairly.

If students are found cheating, and that is not difficult, the students will have to come to school accompanied by their parents who will take all the necessary safety measures, to answer the papers, where unfair means were used. Honesty is essential for students and Parents, and fairness in the exam is essential for the school.

May you do well in the Half Yearly Examination.
